

EUNICE AMOS -- Eunice Amos, who still resides in St. Peter, was a long-time vocational home economics teacher and Futures Leaders of America (FLA) advisor at SPHS from 1975 to 1995. To this day she remains a loyal supporter of SPHS, its students, staff and activities.

She earned her teaching degree in home economics education from the University of Minnesota along with minors in science, English and social studies. She also earned a master of science degree in home economics education from Mankato State University with an emphasis in the study of child development.

She contributed to the work of other departments during her time at St. Peter High School, including making and creating costumes for drama department, supporting work of the SPHS Student Council, allowing use of home economics facilities and assisting with lessons in foreign language and special education, and repairing athletic uniforms for SPHS teams.

During her time at SPHS she used the resources of the community of St. Peter to enhance her classroom teaching.
